Park at the Old Inn car park by the old stone road bridge. The crag is visible on the distant skyline of An Groban (the hill on the left looking up the glen). Walk up the glen to the waterfall and go up the path on the left-hand side of it to reach a small bridge over the burn. Leave the constructed path here and head up the glen over the stile over the deer fence keeping the burn down to the right. The path eventually steepens slightly and reaches the burn further up the glen. At this point the crag is hidden up above on the left. Pick up a climber's trail that heads more steeply upwards and traverses left under the lower tier of crags to emerge at the Bastion. One hour to walk. Worth riding a bike to the waterfall if only for the roll home at the end of the day.
